ABSTRACT

A fuel dispenser that displays information based upon the identity of the customer includes a user interface that permits the fuel dispenser to determine the identity of the customer. Once the fuel dispenser has determined the identity of the customer, the fuel dispenser displays information on a display that is customized as a function of the determined identity of the customer.